

Transcripta is a Malta-based group of professional translators. Our team is composed of highly experienced native translators specialised in various technical fields, including law, science, languages, education, engineering, finance and information technology. We specialise in Mediterranean languages, including Maltese, English, Italian, French and Arabic, and are authorised to provide sworn translations.

We follow rigorous quality assurance procedures, and all documents translated are revised inhouse. Transcripta has more than 15 years experience working for EU institutions, multinational translation agencies and corporate clients.

We can understand your business constraints, and are committed to provide you with a tailor-made solution to satisfy your expectations, time-frames and budget.

Our experience in the professional translation industry dates back to 2001, when we were officially selected to translate European Union official documents from English and French to Maltese.

Progressively our fields of expertise diversified to other sectors, in particular in the pharmaceutical, legal and technical domains. Over the years our translation team also expanded to cover a wider range of languages, with special emphasis on languages of the Mediterranean region.

We now cover all major languages, and translate an average of five million words annually in a broad spectrum of specialized domains.

With a proven track record of more than 15 years of successful deliveries, you can rest assured that your translations are being handled by experienced professionals.
