PROFILE

I was born in Cali, Colombia, raised in Paris and over the years I have travelled and worked in about 80 cities in 4 continents. I lived in Tokyo for 4 years and now based in New York since June 2009. I look, I think, I write, I cook, I practice yoga and I tell stories. I shape identities. Of people, of places, of cultural construction processes.

I strive to create and share memorable moments with people I care about wherever I go. And I'm also very good at speaking five languages fluently, with no accent.

Published writer, journalist and photographer.

I majored in Literature and Creative writing at the Lycée Français Louis Pasteur in Bogotá and then studied Design & Visual Arts in Cali, Colombia before completing my Master's Degree in Visual Arts & Photography at Nihon University in Tokyo. I have worked and taught at Undergraduate level, given workshops and talks since 2000, in Colombia, Brazil, the United States, Turkey, Japan and Nepal among others. I now work freelance as Creative Director for Office Kuki, a Boutique Brand Marketing Agency in NYC.
