Social skills and competences

Motivation and confidence building. In both the teaching profession and in the coordination of teams of writers and translators, I have a recognised ability to keep up student and team morale, which is of utmost importance in enhancing group performance. I have demonstrated sensitivity to student and team-member needs and circumstances.

Organisational skills and competences

Organisational and project management skills, as shown when, for example I took the initiative to set up, prepare and teach a course in British Cultural Studies. British Cultural Studies courses had been created in other teaching centres, especially in eastern Europe. I created this course in Barcelona, and was the only teacher to offer it during six consecutive academic years. I developed all the materials and reading lists for the course during this period.

I also worked as coordinator on an on-line materials development project based in the British Council centre in Milan. I coordinated the materials production of a team of four writers living and working in different parts of the world including Italy and Japan. Working within a very restricted time-frame, we produced materials for the British Council on-line learning environment. These materials are still being used extensively.

I have learnt to coordinate multi-media translation projects from the request for information on the part of the client to project closure.

Technical skills and competences

Effective use of CAT software in translation projects. Attention to detail. Meticulousness in the presentation of translated materials, both in terms of linguistic accuracy and formatting.

Effective use of a variety of methods, techniques and procedures applicable to the teaching and acquisition of a second language. Skills of analysis and synthesis. Recognised skill in the written expression of English and Spanish. Rigour and method in my approach to the task in hand.

Computer skills and competences
