

Benjamin Farrelly

German-English Translator

Specialist in Medicine, Law & Engineering

Home address: 73 Rectory St, Middleton, Manchester, M24 5TY (UK)

Telephone: +971 566 179 81

Email: benjo643@hotmail.co.uk

Skype: benjomino10

Nationality: British

Alma Mater: Oxford University

DOB: 30/8/88

Professional Profile

A dedicated and high quality translator, educated at Oxford University in German and Linguistics (Translation). Wide range of translation experience, specializing in Medicine, Law and Engineering. Reliable, efficient and above all, precise.

Career Summary

- Freelance Translator 2006 - present (13 years)

Working freelance for a variety of large translation companies, I have worked a very large number of highly important translations from German to English, focusing on efficiency and quality. I have often preferred to keep my work freelance rather than work for a company, allowing me to focus solely on my client's translations, though I have produced projects for companies also.

Education and Qualifications

BA, MA, Oxford University 2006-10
PGCE, Buckingham University 2013-14
3 A Levels 2004-06
8 GCSEs 2003-04

Modern Languages (German) and Linguistics (Translation)
Education
German, French, Music
Including History and Science

IT Skills

- Trados, Word, Excel, Publisher, PowerPoint

Further interests and Activities

Languages

Beyond my primary career as a translator, I am also a fluent speaker of 6 languages (German, French, Russian, Kazakh, Irish Gaelic) I have run several language programmes for all ages in these languages. These clubs have prepared people well for exams in these subjects as well as emigration to new countries.

I began the French program at Haileybury Astana school as a precursor to the subject being introduced formally across the school for GCSE and A-Level and had a large number of subscribers who were then very well prepared to begin formal study.

I have an interest in linguistics in general, and am an avid language learner, with knowledge of many other languages. I love to travel and find opportunities to speak to people of different nationalities and cultures in their native tongue.

