

Stephen “Shlomo” Wrubel

Experienced English editor and Hebrew-to-English translator with an established history of working with news agencies, political parties, NGOs, and religious organizations. Knowledge in public relations catering to a diverse public, with a keen ability to channel communications to specific and broad target audiences.

Current Experiences

- Kedushas Tzion: Editor in Chief of the English department for publication of all material; Member of the executive board for the project’s coordination and public relations; Advisor for Diaspora affairs; Translator of articles from Hebrew into English
- Avira D’Eretz Yisroel: Editor of online articles and printed materials; Advisor for public relations and organizational affairs
- SZ Translation: Translator (contract) for various documents (specialization in NGOs)

Previous Experiences

- Otzma Yehudit: Translator of news briefs, articles, and media clips for its English-speaking audience
- Bring Them Home: Blogger, Editor, Content Researcher, and Advisor for the website
- Tomedes Professional Translation Services: Translator (contract) of short documents (transcripts, diplomas, statements, et al.)
- Arutz Sheva/Israel National News: Staff Writer and Translator for the English website

Education

Northeastern University College of Professional Studies | Boston, Massachusetts | 2021

Bachelor of Science in Liberal Studies (English Writing and Communications)

Graduated summa cum laude (GPA 3.97/4.0)

Minors in History and International Relations

2020-21 Senior Staff Writer for the Northeastern University Historical Review

Professional Organization Affiliations

American Translators Association (ATA)

International Association of Professional Translators and Interpreters (IAPTI)

Israel Translators Association (ITA)

Other Related Skills

Organizational Communication

Project Coordination

Time Management

Team Leadership

Desktop Publishing

Internet and Academic Research