Summary

As evident from my education and work experience, I specialise in economics, agriculture, management, and wholesale marketing. However, my true passion is languages and linguistics. I may only have formal proof of my English expertise; but informally I've been delving deep into historical and comparative linguistics for years, thus I'm well acquainted with most of the language clades descending from Proto-Indo-European, including Ancient Greek, Latin, Old English, and all the descendants of the former three.
