PORTFOLIO

Michail Michos

English/Greek Translator

ABOUT ME

There exists a boarder world waiting to be discovered by non-English speakers, and as a freelance translator, equipped with a keen eye for detail and a deep appreciation for the nuances of language, I'm dedicated to helping them access it! Drawing from my combined volunteer and real-life experiences, I provide quality translations that preserve the original meaning while resonating with the target audience. I believe in translating not just words but also the essence of the message, and producing translations that are accurate, culturally sensitive, and engaging. I'm really keen on learning new things and always strive to deliver exceptional results for every project.

WORK EXPERIENCE

TED

I've been volunteering as a translator for TED, where I've had the opportunity to translate talks into Greek. By meticulously attending to linguistic details, I ensure that the essence and authenticity of each talk are preserved for Greek-speaking audiences. Through this experience, I've refined my linguistic skills and played a meaningful part in breaking down language barriers and promoting cross-cultural understanding.

Audiopedia

As a volunteer English/Greek translator for Audiopedia, I've played a crucial role in ensuring that educational content is readily available to Greek-speaking communities. This volunteer position has not only allowed me to enhance my translation skills but has also deepened my appreciation for the role of language in providing individuals with access to knowledge and empowerment.

Personal Projects

Engaging in personal video projects has given me the opportunity to explore subtitling in depth, allowing me to improve my skills in time coding and transcriptions. This experience has provided me with a strong basis for taking on more subtitling projects in the future.

Real-life work experience in Ireland

My experience working in Ireland has greatly enhanced my English proficiency, consequently improving my translation abilities. Immersing myself in an English-speaking environment on a daily basis has provided ample opportunities for practice and skill development. As a result, I can now translate with greater precision, and effectively conveying nuances and cultural intricacies.

Thank you! 😊
